

SEPARATED WITH CHILDREN – DEALING WITH THE FINANCES

The Justice Education Society; formerly known as Law Courts Education Society, with Support of Department of Justice Canada, BC Ministry of Attorney General Family Justice Division, and Family Maintenance Enforcement Program, proudly invites you to attend a workshop designed to assist separating and divorcing families with their finances. The workshop has been designed to complement the Parenting After Separation program.

The task of continuing to parent while working through the legal, emotional, social and financial turmoil of the separation process can be very difficult. The goals of these workshops are to assist parents to understand how to address the financial issues connected with separating and how to develop business-like strategies for dealing with these issues, both immediately and for the long term. All workshops include some of the following topics:

- Becoming financially independent.
- Dealing with your ex and your children about money
- Dealing with budgeting and debt issues
- Child Support, spousal support and property/asset division issues
- Useful resources and self-assessment tools
