

Family Justice Centre - Parenting After Separation

The task of continuing to parent while working through the legal, emotional, social and financial turmoil of the separation process can be very difficult. Workshops available in New Westminster, and Vancouver assist families through this process. The goals of these workshops are to attempt to reduce the stress of the process for families and assist them in moving forward with their lives. Topics include:

- The court process, the mediation process and the role of the Family Justice Counselor.
- The child and parent's experiences of the separation process.
- Strategies to help yourself and your child through this process.
- When and how to seek professional help for your child or yourself.
- Effective ways to communicate and problem solve, building a positive co-parenting relationship.

Parenting After Separation - Finances

The Justice Education Society, with the Support of Department of Justice Canada, BC Ministry of Attorney General Family Justice Division, and Family Maintenance Enforcement Program, proudly invites you to attend a workshop designed to assist separating and divorcing families with their finances. The workshop has been designed to complement the Parenting After Separation program.

The task of continuing to parent while working through the legal, emotional, social and financial turmoil of the separation process can be very difficult. The goals of these workshops are to assist parents to understand how to address the financial issues connected with separating and how to develop strategies for dealing with these issues, both immediately and for the long term. Workshops include the following topics:

- Becoming financially independent.
- Dealing with your ex and your children about money
- Dealing with budgeting and debt issues
- Child support, spousal support and property/asset division issues
- Useful resources and self-assessment tools
